Ryan Flipse: We don't have any major shifts occurring or different work coming up for the next few weeks leading up into the holiday. The sidewalk detour on westbound Sand Lake Road is still ongoing and will be in place for a few months, up until the implementation of the diverging diamond interchange (DDI). We have some photos of new planters that were placed near the sidewalk detour.

David Vallillo: The planters look fantastic.

Maria Triscari: The planters help shows that this project and area is a cut above the norm.

David: So many people have asked me about the construction. Nothing but positive comments. But also, a lot of questions about the future. So, we send them to the website.

Ryan: We are also working on future outreach events for next year to inform the public but also stakeholders including employers and employees in the area.

Maria: We can help get a location for any potential meeting. I think it may also be a good idea to do another presentation at a board meeting in the future.

Ryan: We also have our smart pedestrian monitoring on Sand Lake Road.

David: It looks like recently the traffic has been a lot better on Sand Lake Road. I'm not sure if that's something you guys did with the signal timing or not.

Ryan: We haven't gotten any public comments recently about this project.

David: Is that typical of other projects, for instance, any of the projects further south?

Ryan: We do get questions, but they are more regarding specific small things. For instance, someone may reach out and let us know that a light is out, or that they got a flat tire in a construction zone, stuff like that.

Esther Montoya: We are also working to make sure that our contractors are held accountable, and that we don't repeat any issues that we previously had on earlier projects.
